INTRODUCTION

On November 11, 2011, three family members faced the horrifying realization that they were about to die a horrendous and premature death and one faced the fear of imminent death and the agony of watching the others die before her eyes, when they were struck from behind by a Coach America bus propelling them into a fully loaded logging truck. On this date, the Coach America bus driver did, in fact, raise her death total to five victims in five years.

The collision that serves as the basis for these claims for relief resulted in three deaths and serious injuries to a fourth family member who miraculously survived. This tragedy, coming at the negligent hands of a charter bus driver who was responsible for two prior vehicular related fatalities, completely decimated a family and could have been avoided had the charter bus company properly fulfilled their obligations under the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations.

THE PARTIES

The Claimants are informed that America Charters, Ltd. was one of three companies sold to Coach USA, which ownership then changed to CUSA, LLC. Further, the parent ownership structure evolved from Coach USA to American Coach Lines and now Coach America. The company operates charter buses under the brand Coach America.

Claimants are informed and believe that both America Charters, Ltd. and CUSA, LLC do business as Coach America. For simplicity only and reserving all rights with respect to any distinction thereto, herein America Charters, Ltd. and CUSA, LLC will be named without any d/b/a reference.

America Charters, Ltd. and CUSA, LLC are part of the elaborately and excessively fragmented maze of corporations that are involved in this Bankruptcy proceeding, with the exception of the ultimate parent company, which has not sought protection from creditors. The Debtors' Bankruptcy filings illustrate the complexity that the Claimants face in naming proper Coach affiliates as party Defendants. In his Declaration, Brian E. Cejka, Chief Restructuring Officer states:

> "The Debtors operate the largest tour and charter bus service and the second largest motorcoach service in the United States. The Debtors operate primarily under the well-recognized Coach America, CUSA, American Coach Lines and Gray Line brands. Services provided by the Debtors include motorcoach charters, tours and sightseeing, commuter transportation, airport and casino shuttles, rail crew transportation and contract services for municipalities and corporations. The Debtors' fleet consists of over 3,000 well maintained vehicles, including 1,623 full size motor coaches, 351 minibuses and cutaways, 902 vans and 39 trolleys."
> (Cejka Declaration ¶ 6)
> "Debtor Coach AM Group Holdings Corp. is the parent of Debtor Coach AM Holdings Corp., which in turn is the parent of Debtor Coach America Holdings, Inc., which is the parent of each of the other Debtors. The equity of Debtor Coach AM Group Holdings Corp. is owned by non-debtor Coach America Group Holdings, II, L.P. This entity is a direct subsidiary of non-debtor Coach America Group Holdings, L.P., which is the ultimate parent company of each of the Debtor and non-debtor entities that are part of the "Coach America" family of companies."

The Claimants are informed that America Charters, Ltd. and CUSA, LLC are subsidiaries of Coach America Holdings, Inc. Claimants are informed and believe that Coach America Holdings, Inc. does business as CUSA, LLC. For simplicity only and reserving all rights with respect to any distinction thereto, herein Coach America Holdings, Inc. will be named without any d/b/a reference.

In addition, the Claimants have obtained a copy of the insurance policies that the "Coach America family of companies" claims covers the incident in question. The named insured on these policies is Coach America Holdings, Inc. Discovery is needed to determine which if not all of the "Coach America family of companies" were involved in the hiring and training of the bus driver, Malverse Van Loan, and the ownership, leasing operations, and maintenance of the charter bus that was involved in this tragic collision. The Claimants are informed that the "Coach America family of companies'" interstate equipment, including the charter bus involved in the death of the Richey family members and serious injury to Rhonda Meeks, are registered in Wyoming and the registrant may be CUSA, LLC. Simply put, it appears clear that America Charters, Ltd is the North Carolina operator for the "Coach America family of companies" and that America Charters

Ltd. is owned by CUSA, LLC, but it is presently unclear which other entities are proper defendants.

Hereinafter, America Charters, Ltd., CUSA, LLC, Coach America Holdings, Inc. and the "Coach America family of companies" are referred to collectively as "Coach America."

At approximately 11:30 a.m. on Friday, November 11, 2011, Debtor America Charters, Ltd. was the owner/lessor of an 2003 MCI J4500 motor coach carrier, Wyoming vehicle plate #A6319, VIN #1M83JMPA33P062084, also traveling north on I-85 in Dinwiddie County, Virginia. Debtor CUSA, LLC was the operator/lessee of said motor carrier. Malverse Van Loan, a resident of Greensboro, North Carolina, was driving said motor coach carrier on behalf of Coach America. Said motor coach carrier was chartered by N.C. A&T State University to carry students to and from an engineering conference in Baltimore, Maryland.

At all relevant times, Malverse Van Loan was employed by Coach America, and was acting as the agent, servant, and employee of Coach America. All of Malverse Van Loan's acts and/or omissions were done within the course and scope of her agency and employment for, and while she was about the business of Coach America.

That on said date and said time, Brandy Nicole Richey was driving, with permission, a 2007 Toyota Tundra, South Carolina vehicle plate #BYY456, VIN #5TBBV54137S483803 owned by James Alva Richey (the "Richey Vehicle"). She was traveling north on I-85 in Dinwiddie County, Virginia in route to Delaware. Her father-in-law, James Peter Richey was in the right front passenger seat. Her husband, James Alva Richey, and her sister, Rhonda Marie Meeks, were riding in the back seat of this double cab truck. (All occupants of the Toyota Tundra are hereinafter referred to as the "Claimants.")

At all times relevant hereto, Brandy Nicole Richey was a resident of Laurens County, South Carolina. The Estate of Brandy Nicole Richey has been established and is being administered in the Probate Court for Laurens County, South Carolina, wherefrom, on March 26, 2012, her biological mother, Shelia Diane Wishon, received Certificate of Appointment (Case number 2012 ES-3000057) to act as the Personal Representative of The Estate of Brandy Nicole Richey. Shelia Diane Wishon is a citizen and resident of North Carolina.

At all times relevant hereto, James Peter Richey was a resident of Laurens County, South Carolina. The Estate of James Peter Richey has been established and is being administered in the Probate Court for Laurens County, South Carolina, wherefrom, on March 26, 2012, his sister, Margaret Coward, received Certificate of Appointment (Case number 2012-ES-3000130) to act as the Personal Representative of The Estate of James Peter Richey. Margaret Coward is a citizen and resident of South Carolina.

At all times relevant hereto, James Alva Richey was a resident of Laurens County, South Carolina. The Estate of James Alva Richey has been established and is being administered in the Probate Court for Laurens County, South Carolina, wherefrom, on March 23, 2012 his Aunt, Angela Stowe, received Certificate of Appointment (Case number 2012-ES-3000126) to act as the Personal Representative of The Estate of James Alva Richey. Angela Stowe is a citizen and resident of South Carolina.

Rhonda Marie Meeks is a citizen and resident of North Carolina.

That on said date and said time, Charles A. Wright, Trucking, Inc. was the owner and operator of an 1999 Kenworth J800 truck, Virginia vehicle plate #72408PY, VIN #1XKDDU9X3XJ8255767, also traveling north on I-85 in Dinwiddie County, Virginia. The driver of this truck, which was on this date and time hauling logs, was Paul V. Taylor, Jr., a resident of La Crosse, Virginia. The Richey vehicle was directly behind the logging truck in the left lane of travel.

STATEMENT OF FACTS

At approximately 11:30 a.m. on Friday, November 11, 2011, all of the referenced vehicles were traveling north on I-85 in Dinwiddie County, Virginia. The vehicles had entered a safety work zone in which the right northbound lane of the highway was closed such that all traffic traveled in the left lane. The Richey vehicle was behind the logging truck and the Coach America bus approached from the rear. The logging truck and the Claimants slowed for traffic when the Richey vehicle was struck from behind by the Coach America charter bus driven by Malverse Van Loan. The force of the impact propelled the Richey vehicle into the rear of the logging truck. The logs that were overhanging the logging truck impaled the Richey vehicle. The pickup truck was crushed and became pinned under the logging truck. At least one of the deceased was partially decapitated.

This horrific crash was witnessed by Virginia State Police Officer James Worley, Badge Number 4314, who was also the investigating officer. At said date and time, Officer Worley had pulled over another motorist and from his position on the side of the roadway witnessed the slowing traffic, the approach of the charter bus, and the resulting collision.

The posted speed limit for this stretch of highway is 70 mph, but due to the work zone, the maximum safe speed was noted on the police report to be 45 mph. According to the police crash report, Officer Worley estimated that both the Richey vehicle and the logging truck traveled at 40 mph and the charter bus traveled at 55 mph. An accident reconstruction team working on behalf of the Claimants downloaded ECM data that confirms the bus traveled at approximately 57-59 mph at the time of impact with no appreciable braking or deceleration.

Brandy Richey (25 years old), her husband James Alva Richey (40 years old), and her father-in-law James Peter Richey (66 years old) died at the scene. Rhonda Marie Meeks was seriously injured and was airlifted from the scene to VCU Medical Center in Richmond, Virginia.

The driver of the charter bus, Malverse Van Loan, was charged with reckless driving. The police report noted that Van Loan failed to maintain proper control of the bus and that her eyes were not on the road at the time of the collision.

ADDITONAL INFORMATION

Adding insult to this tragic situation, only 18 months prior to this fatal collision, this same driver, Malverse Van Loan, had struck and killed a pedestrian while driving a public transit bus in New Jersey. A civil action was filed by the pedestrian's estate against Malverse Van Loan in February 2011.

In addition, the Claimants are informed that Malverse Van Loan was charged in 2006 with a separate vehicular violation which resulted in the death of another individual. Thus, within only a five year period, this driver Malverse Van Loan was involved in the vehicular deaths of 5 individuals.

The Claimants are informed that Malverse Van Loan has a long history of vehicular violations, including speeding, unsafe movements, reckless driving, and three license suspensions.

g) Malverse Van Loan failed to maintain appropriate time intervals between her vehicle and those traveling in front of her.

h) Malverse Van Loan failed to manage the space around her vehicle in a manner appropriate to the conditions that existed immediately prior to the collision.

SECOND CAUSE OF ACTION
(Negligent Entrustment)

On or about November 11, 2011, Malverse Van Loan, while employed by, acting on behalf of and in the course and scope of her employment for Coach America, drove a commercial motor coach in an unsafe, negligent, careless, incompetent, hazardous, and otherwise wrongful manner so as to cause said vehicle to crash into the Richeys' vehicle.

At all times alleged herein, Malverse Van Loan was employed by Coach America and was acting as the agent, servant, and employee of Coach America. Malverse Van Loan's acts and/or omissions were done within the course and scope of her agency and employment for Coach America, and while she was about the business of Coach America.

At all times herein mentioned, Malverse Van Loan was negligently entrusted to operate commercial motor coach for Coach America which knew or should have known of the unsafe, negligent, careless, incompetent, hazardous, and otherwise wrongful manner of driving habits of Malverse Van Loan before it entrusted her with said commercial motor vehicle.

As a direct and proximate result of the unsafe, negligent, careless, incompetent, hazardous, and otherwise wrongful manner of driving of Malverse Van Loan and of Coach America, Rhonda Marie Meeks was seriously injured, and was in great risk, fear and apprehension of imminent physical harm and/or impact and death, which caused her to suffer, and has continued to suffer, severe emotional distress, compounded by the emotional distress caused by having to watch her sister, brother-in-law and his father die beside her as she was trapped in the vehicle for three hours before extrication, that has manifested itself in physical symptoms and for which she has incurred, and will continue to incur, medical expenses for the treatment of such injuries.

(Negligent Hiring, Training, Supervision, and Retention)

Coach America had a duty of due care in the hiring, training, supervision, and retention of its employees. Coach America had a further duty of due care to investigate the background of its employees, especially in light of the particular risk or hazard that the breach of that duty poses to other persons, such as Rhonda Marie Meeks and decedents Brandy Nicole Richey, James Alva Richey and James Peter Richey. Defendants, and each of them, breached their duty in that, among other things, they (1) knew or had reason to know that Malverse Van Loan was incompetent and an unfit employee; (2) knew or had reason to know that Malverse Van Loan was not properly trained to safely operate a commercial motor vehicle; (3) knew or had reason to know that Malverse Van Loan had struck and killed a pedestrian while driving a public transit bus within 12 months of hire; and, (4) knew or had reason to know that Malverse Van Loan was not properly trained in compliance with Federal, State, and Local safety/trucking standards, regulations, codes, laws, and ordinances including, but not limited to, the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations.

Despite the foregoing, Coach America negligently, recklessly, and carelessly permitted Malverse Van Loan to operate one of their commercial motor carriers in the course and scope of her employment with Coach America.

As a direct and proximate result of the negligence of Coach America in the hiring, training, supervision, and retention of Malverse Van Loan, Rhonda Marie Meeks was seriously injured, and was in great risk, fear and apprehension of imminent physical harm and/or impact and death, which caused her to suffer, and has continued to suffer, severe emotional distress, compounded by the emotional distress caused by having to watch her sister, brother-in-law and his father die beside her as she was trapped in the vehicle for three hours before extrication, that has manifested itself in physical symptoms and for which she has incurred, and will continue to incur, medical expenses for the treatment of such injuries.

As a direct and proximate result of the negligence of Coach America in the hiring, training, supervision, and retention of Malverse Van Loan, Brandy Nicole Richey, James Alva Richey and James Peter Richey were fatally hurt and injured on November 11, 2011.

As a result of these injuries and ultimate deaths, Rhonda Marie Meeks and the Estates of Brandy Nicole Richey, James Alva Richey and James Peter Richey, through their respective Personal Representatives, are entitled to recover damages in excess of Five Million and No/100 Dollars ($5,000,000.00) from Coach America as follows:

d. Compensation for the pain, suffering and mental anguish of Brandy Nicole Richey, James Alva Richey and James Peter Richey;

e. The reasonable funeral expenses of the Estates of Brandy Nicole Richey, James Alva Richey, and James Peter Richey;

    i. The loss of income of Brandy Nicole Richey, James Alva Richey, and James Peter Richey;

ii. The loss of services, protection, care and assistance provided by Brandy Nicole Richey, James Alva Richey, and James Peter Richey;

iii. The services, protection, care and assistance, whether voluntary or obligatory, of Brandy Nicole Richey, James Alva Richey, and James Peter Richey to the persons entitled to the damages recovered; and

iv. The society, companionship, comfort, guidance, kindly offices and advice of Brandy Nicole Richey, James Alva Richey, and James Peter Richey to the persons entitled to the damages recovered.

The Richeys are informed and believe, and on the basis of that information and belief allege that Coach America did not obtain a certification of motor vehicle traffic law convictions for Malverse VanLoan.

On or about November 11, 2011, Coach America operated a commercial motor carrier and allowed Malverse Van Loan to operate said charter bus, in the course and scope of her employment, with the knowledge that Malverse Van Loan was not provided a sufficient employment application and Malverse Van Loan did not sufficiently fill out the employment application.
