Re: In re Exide Technologies, et. al.

Dear John:

This responds to your letter of August 21, 2003, regarding depositions and trial witnesses.

First, there is no basis in law or fact to refuse to produce properly-noticed deponents, including John Craig. We are entitled to take his deposition to support Exide's case, and your own decision not to call him at trial on EnerSys' behalf has no bearing on our ability to take his (or any one else's) deposition. Accordingly, please confirm that Mr. Craig and Mr. Philion will be produced for deposition during the week of August 25, 2003, or we will seek the Court's assistance.

Second, Exide has identified numerous individuals who are potential fact witnesses in addition to Lisa Donohue, Mitch Bregman, and Neil Bright, and your effort to cabin Exide's proofs at trial to those three persons is unavailing. For example, Exide provided additional potential witnesses in its objections and response to EnerSys's 30(b)(6) notice of deposition. If EnerSys chooses not to follow through on its 30(b)(6) notice, objectionable as it is, that is your decision and at EnerSys's own risk. Your "assumption" that Exide's only potential fact witnesses at trial are Messrs. Bregman and Bright and Ms. Donohue is therefore incorrect. Please also see Exide's Supplemental Response to Interrogatory No. 1.

Finally, please confirm immediately whom EnerSys intends to call as witnesses at trial, as we still have not received such a list from EnerSys.

Very truly yours,

Lisa M Barr/RMP
