SPECIALTY FINISH ACCEPTANCE

Please read the disclaimer below. If you have any questions, please address them with your salesperson prior to signing this document. Check all that apply

- ☒ Cherry
Cherry hardwood has an attractive, rich color that deepens with age, a characteristic you will appreciate the longer you own and admire your cabinets. Lighter colored cherry products will "mellow" to shades of yellow to brown while darker hues will deepen to a reddish brown shade.
- ☐ Maple
Maple is noted for its beauty, consisting of sapwood, which is commonly white with a slight reddish tinge, and heartwoods, usually a light reddish brown but sometimes considerably darker. Maple may contain Birdseye, curly and fiddle back grain definitions.
- ☐ Hickory
Hickory is a tough and strong hardwood with wild grain characteristics. Small knots and reddish brown mineral streaks accompanied by natural white sapwood and browned heartwood are common in hickory cabinets. The amount of grain variation is greatly affected by the color finish you select. The lighter the stain, the more variation.
- ☐ Oak
Red oak is an open grained hardwood that offers grain variations that range from close, nearly vertical grain to a more pronounced cathedral grain. Oak lumber will typically range from almost white to yellow and pink and may include mineral streaks. When stained, the grain will become more pronounced and will stain darker than the surrounding wood.
- ☐ Natural Finish
A clear sealer and topcoat are applied to highlight the natural graining of the wood. No color stain is applied, so subtle to highly noticeable color variations will be present in the natural finish products.
- ☐ Mist and Glaze Accents
These processes can create artistic variations from piece to piece inside the same kitchen. This is acceptable as a characteristic of the finishing process and is not to be considered reason for replacement. Additionally, external elements (e.g., cigarette smoke, grease) can cause color variations and are not to be considered reason for replacement.
- ☐ Dyes / HAAS ONLY
The process of applying and wiping dyed colors will result in a build-up of stain that may not be uniform in consistency and color from area to area. This is an acceptable characteristic and is not considered a reason for replacement. Finish dyes will also take on different looks on the various wood species. Natural and artificial lighting conditions and other external elements (e.g., cigarette smoke, grease) can cause color variations and are not to be considered reason for replacement.
- ☐ Painted Finishes
With the natural expanding and contracting of hardwood, some separation will occur at the cabinet joints creating visible hairline cracks. These cracks are acceptable on painted wood surfaces, do not affect the structural integrity of the cabinets, and are not to be considered reason for replacement. Additionally, external elements (e.g., cigarette smoke, grease) can cause color variations and are not to be considered reason for replacement.
- ☐ Thermofoil
Thermofoil cabinets provide the look of painted cabinetry without the brush strokes, drips, and imperfections that come along with paint. Discoloration can occur over time or when the material is exposed to excessive heat.
- ☐ Rustic Woods and Quarter Sawn Oak
Haas does offer a rustic wood and quarter sawn selection of styles. This product will have knots and wild grain patterns. Expect the unexpected, and understand that exchanges or refunds are not available if there is a complaint regarding this final product.

I have read and understand the above. By signing this document, I agree not to hold HOBOb or vendor responsible in the event any of these characteristics or variations are later found by me to be less than desirable than I had expected.

WOOD & FINISH ACCEPTANCE

Thank you for your cabinetry purchase at HOBO.

Please read the disclaimer below.

Be aware: NONE OF THE NATURAL OCCURRENCES DESCRIBED BELOW SHALL BE CONSIDERED A REASON FOR REPLACEMENT, RETURN OR REFUND OF YOUR PURCHASE.

In nature, trees will never grow identical to each other and woods from the same tree will often differ in color and grain. For that reason, wood finishes on all products will, at times, vary in color and grain characteristics, sometimes quite drastically.

Heartwood, usually having a slightly reddish-brown color, will result in a gray or blueish appearance. Mineral streaks will appear as a small black stain. Therefore, we cannot guarantee a match between individual cabinets or pieces on cabinets.

These wood characteristics shall not be considered defects.

Variations must be accepted as the beauty of a natural product that only nature can create.

Under no circumstance will the natural characteristics of wood be considered a defect or warranty issue.

Each specialty finish has been formulated to provide a unique way of enhancing the beauty of wood. To ensure your full understanding and satisfaction with this unique finish process, please review the "Specialty Finish Acceptance Form" (Form C).

Solid hardwoods and hardwood veneers will have variations in color and grain patterns.

Expect differences in each piece of wood used.

Depending on your selection, the colors and grain patterns may be partially to completely visible though the finish and should be accepted as characteristic of the final product.

Exposure to changing temperatures and humidity levels causes hardwoods to naturally expand and contract. Over time, these changes may cause slight separations at the cabinet joints, making visible hairline cracks in these finishes. These hairline cracks do not affect the structural integrity of the cabinet. Natural and artificial lighting conditions and other external elements (e.g., cigarette smoke, grease) can also cause color variations.

Natural Wood Expansion / Contraction

All wood pieces will take on and/or give off moisture to balance their new environments. Some door warping and center panel contraction is considered a normal occurrence. Over time, the product should return to equilibrium. For this reason, we ask that all solid wood products be allowed to process through one complete heating and cooling cycle.

I have read and understand the above. By signing this document, I am in complete acceptance and understand what is being ordered for my project.
