

1086, 1102 (3d Cir. 1995) (listing the three requirements to supplemental jurisdiction and noting that the first requirement is that the "federal claim must have substance sufficient to confer subject matter jurisdiction on the court"). Since I have dismissed the only claims in which I have original jurisdiction, i.e., the federal Title VII claims, this court does not have the authority to exercise any supplemental jurisdiction over the remaining state law claims. Therefore, I will grant the defendants' Rule 12(c) motion with respect to defendant Fisher and dismiss the state law claims against Fisher without prejudice.

IV. CONCLUSION

Based on the foregoing reasons, I will grant the defendants' Rule 12(c) motion for judgment on the pleadings. This court lacks subject matter jurisdiction over the plaintiff's claims. The United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of Illinois retained exclusive jurisdiction to resolve the matters raised in the parties' briefs and supplemental jurisdiction does not exist for the state law claims.

An appropriate Order follows.
